LOCAL MATTERS.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Workmen are engaged cleansing up the grounds and repairing the walks of Capitol Square.

James Rowland, Esq., a prominent citizen of this County, left this place yesterday for Austin, Texas. He takes his entire family with him, consisting of three children.

Railroad tickets are issued to all points North, South and West, in this city, by the North Carolina Railroad Company.

Seven thousand cabbages have been purchased by one stand, that of Paul Lincke, in our city market. Cannot our hucksters raise enough for the coming season?

The "old inhabitants" say the past week was the coldest weather for the past 21 years.

It is now thought that John Mills, arrested in Wilmington for the murder of Travis Washington in Halifax county, will turn out to be some body else.

Burwell Brown, a native of this county, died a short time since at the advanced age of 105 years.

The holy rite of baptism will be administered to one or more candidates at the Baptist Church, to-morrow after the morning services.

Phil Thiem, the Fayetteville street Family Grocer, exhibited to our astonished gaze on yesterday the first imported cigars, we knew to have been so, that we have seen since the war.

OF COURSE.—The P. M. at Conway, S. C., writes to Gov. Caldwell to know, if parties from South Carolina capture Henry Berry Lowrey, will the reward be paid them—certainly—but we've "heard" talk of this sort before.

MASS MEETING.—There will be a Mass Meeting, a Bible mass meeting—at the Baptist Church to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting will be addressed by the city pastors and several prominent laymen.

NARROW ESCAPE.—A gentleman crossing the R. & G. Railroad yesterday, in a buggy, near Franklinton N. C., narrowly escaped being run over by the Southern bound mail train. Our informant did not know the gentleman, only that he "saved his bacon" only by enough, not to brag on.

"BAMBAZ" PUNCH.—Make a cup of strong Java coffee, putting in a fair quantity of rich cream, and loaf sugar—about half a gill of fine Scotch or Irish whiskey and drink while the mixture is steaming hot. It is unnecessary to add from whom we obtained the foregoing recipe, but we have high authority for its excellence.

MAYORS COURT.—Friday March 8th, 1872.—Mayor W. H. Harrison, presiding.—Sam'l J. Cross, a knight of the "tombstonal" art—a brusher of whiskers, and a whisker of brushes, while in a bar-barous humor and bar-barously inclined, committed an assault and battery on one Lafayette Nash, a Senegambian to the full tune of five dollar's worth, which added just that much to the city Treasury.

MISTAKEN AGAIN.—A few days ago we had occasion to speak of the thriving little village going up, about a mile West of the city, and gave it the name of Morgantown. We were informed that some of its denizens were a little miffed at the name, and stated that it was San Domingo. Now we are politely informed that both names are wrong—that it is universally known as Sare and hope we are right this time.

PRETTY.—We saw on exhibition yesterday, at the furniture ware rooms of W. H. Morris & Co., No. 3, Fayetteville street, the most beautiful and elegant French walnut marble-top ladies' dressing case, it has ever been our privilege to behold. Visions of everlasting conjugal felicity intermingled with the new dressing suit of our better half, should we make her a birth-day present of this attractive piece of furniture, tempted us to ask the price of the article—$165, says Watson, and away went our hopes. It is a beauty, and well worth a visit merely to look at.

DE CASTRO is still drawing large houses at Tucker Hall. Last evening was the first of his decapecation trick, which we must say was really wonderful to behold. His head resting on a table separate and apart from his body which was lying on the floor fully three feet distant, was an optical illusion never to be accounted for by this "local." Many valuable presents, as on the previous evening, were given away, including a fine silver watch and $30 in greenbacks. Remember this evening is the grand family matinee, and to night is the last opportunity to witness both the "suspension" and the decapecation act.

THE PENITENTIARY.—We yesterday in company with friend Syme, of the Sentinel, paid a visit to the above institution.

Announcing ourselves at the gate, we were kindly received by the Warden, Capt. Everard Hall, a gentleman well suited for the position, and one who knows and attends to his duties. We were shown through the various apartments and over the immense grounds. We saw and noted the commencement of the gigantic building which when finished will last through almost endless and numberless ages. As our readers have already seen through the press, what this proposed structure will be, we will not go into a detailed account of the building. Work has been suspended on the building in consequence of the recent legislative investigation of the huge frauds, perpetrated by the letting out of the contract by that never-to-be-forgotten Assembly of 1869.

The work that is now going on in and around the stockade is inadequate for the large force at present confined therein, and our recent Legislature wisely provided for the farming out of at least two hundred of the convicts, the advertisement of which appears in our columns.

We learned from the President of the Board of Directors, M. A. Bledsoe, Esq., that propositions have been received from Dr. W. J. Hawkins, President of the Raleigh & Augusta Air Line R. R., R. Y. McAden, President of the A. T. & O. R. R., and W. L. McKay, President of the Western Railroad, for the hire of the convicts, and doubtless an arrangement will soon be effected by which, instead of being a burden to the State, these convicts will not only provide for their own support, but bring in a handsome revenue to the State.

After an hurried inspection of the cell, wash room, kitchen, bath, and bath room, we entered the hospital, both for the sick and convalescent, and we were pleased to note the special care and attention, as shown in these departments. We saw only one or two that were seriously ill—Dud Meadows, one of the most noted men of his original section, Warren county, will we fear soon end his long career of crime in the only means to save him from more crime.

From the hospital we next visited the dispensary, presided over by John Cordon, the internal arrangements of which reflected much credit on the skill and management of this official.

The arms used by the guard, who are frequently inspected by the Commander, Col. G. W. Faribault, are the Winchester Repeating rifles, that shoot twenty balls consecutively, and said to be the best weapon in use.

We were pleased to observe the thorough and systematic management of this institution under its present efficient administration, and hope that every obstacle in its early completion may be removed.

THE PARADE YESTERDAY.—The Fire Brigade of Raleigh turned out yesterday evening in full dress parade. The Rescue Steam Engine, Fire Co. Capt. W. C. Stronach, Commanding, formed at their Engine House at 3 o'clock, and preceded by Stanley's Oak City brass band, paraded the principal streets of the city. Halting in Capital Square, the hose was coupled to the Engine and in three minutes the steam was up, and a stream of water was thrown over the dome of the Capitol; after which the parade was resumed. Along the line of march the firemen were greeted by the fair sex who appeared on balconies and in windows, and manifested their approval and pleasure by the waving of handkerchiefs, cheering, &c.

The "Rescue" is composed of the leading citizens of our city, and a finer looking body of men never donned firemen's attire. We observed in the ranks, several prominent county and city officials, men though advanced in years, still active, healthy and vigorous and always the first to attend the alarm.

Such a company, with such men, with such an engine, and with such officers, is an ornament to our prosperity, enterprising and growing city, and long may it wave.

The Victor Fire Engine Company, composed of the leading colored citizens of the city was also out in full dress, and presented quite a handsome appearance in their brilliant uniform of "red." This company has won a reputation in the city for promptness and effectiveness, second to no other, and is worthy of great commendation and praise. Their practice occurred at the corner of Hargett and Wilmington streets and a few moments inspection of their maneuvers satisfied us that the organization was perfect, and the company well disciplined. Every encouragement should be extended to our colored firemen by our citizens.

LOCAL MARKET.—Butter 35c40; eggs 25; chickens, 30c40; turkeys, $3.00 a pair; cabbage, 20c30; turnip salad 25c; per bushel sweet potatoes, $1.00 per bushel; Irish potatoes, Northern, $2.00; N. CITY COMMISSIONERS.—We failed to receive the following important part of the proceedings of the board at their meeting on Wednesday evening last. Mr. Badger, City Attorney, reported that the Railroad Companies would put the Central Depot and its surroundings in order and thoroughly macadamize the same, and, upon the suggestion of the City Attorney, on motion of Mr. Battle, a committee was appointed to see upon what terms the Rail Companies would deliver rock to the city authorities to be used in macadamizing the streets leading to the depot up to the crests of the hills.

RIGHT—VERY MUCH.—I write to you Mr. Wright, to inform you that you do not write, w-r-i-t-e right; to write—w-r-i-t-e, right; you should make—w-r-i-t-e, and not r-i-t-e.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.—Alexander Williams, a leading and prominent farmer of Person county, is in the city. Col. L. W. Humphrey of Goldsboro, is sojourning at the Yborborough. Neil S. McCoy, Solicitor of the 5th Judicial Circuit, is registered at the National on yesterday.

Messrs. W. H. Tucker, Greesh, and Maj. Petty, left the city a day or two ago to visit Northern markets and manufactures.

OUR CHURCHES TO-MORROW.—Divine Services will be held at the following churches on to-morrow, as below stated. Strangers and others in the city, are earnestly and cordially invited to attend; obliging sextons will conduct them to pews which are always free.

Files or not files.—That was the question.—Mine host Rutjes, of the "National," is a first class caterer and keeps a most excellent table, but it seems that his savory viands do not always prove tempting to unsophisticated eyes. Recently, two gentlemen from the East sat down to his supper table when the following scene occurred:

First Gent.—breaking a luscious roll, and discovering a baked fly snugly ensconced within its snowy flakes, exclaims, indignantly—"Waiter, remove this bread."

Waiter, astonished and demurring in manner somewhat, removes gent's plate and furnishes a new one.

Gent, breaking another roll, finds two flies stowed away as aforesaid—still more indignantly—"Waiter, take this bread away."

Waiter, still more astonished takes away the bread, and looks this time as if he had premonitory symptoms of a fit.

Gent, breaking another roll, discovers another fly and is about to rise from the table when he notices his companion is bursting with laughter. He examines his third roll more carefully, and his feelings are better imagined than described when he finds out that his supposed flies are inoffensive crumets.

It seems that our friend Rutjes' crumets do not always pass current with his numerous patrons.

INTERNAL REVENUE PROSECUTIONS.—The Attorney General has written a letter to the United States Attorney at Pittsburg, Pa., in relation to prosecutions of offenders against the internal revenue laws. He states he has conferred with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue on the subject, and suggests that the Attorney will not allow indictments to be found for what appears to be technical violations of internal revenue laws without first conferring with the assessors or collectors in the district wherein it is alleged such offenses are committed.

Information received from Arizona is to the effect that eight hundred of the fifteen hundred Walapai Indians have come on the reservation. They are being fed each, with a pound of flour and a pound of meat a day. A few only of the Apaches have come in. Some of them, after being fed, left the reservation and resorted to stealing.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue understands that the New York Central Railroad Company will acquiesce in his decision, respecting the collection of the scrip dividend tax assessed against the road.

The meeting also resolved that while they were willing to heartily support the nominees of the Greensboro Convention, yet it recognized the qualifications of Gen. A. M. Scales, of Rockingham, for Governor, and of Henry R. Bryan, Esq., of Craven, for Lieutenant Governor, and recommended Dr. L. W. Martin, of Carteret, for Secretary of State. Our Murfreesboro Letter.

MURFREESBORO, N. C., March 7th, 1872.

Your article headed "Organize," is timely and of the right stamp. It has the ring of the true metal, and gives forth the purpose of the movement. We expect to carry the State in the coming election, and our preparations ought to be such as to render our victory sure and complete. Some say it is too soon to begin the organization suggested by the Central Executive Committee—that the people will tire of the canvass before the election; but every good soldier, and North Carolina has as good a soldier as any, knows that eternal vigilance is necessary to render success certain. We hold, too, that the people of the State—and by people, we mean those who constitute the opponents of radicalism—are not very choice as to candidates, provided they are representative men—honest and efficient. Let them be seus par et sans reproche, and the voters will not stop to consider whether they hail from the East or the West. Those who are honored with the nominations of the Greensboro Convention ought to be, and will receive the hearty support of the party. If any man counsels to a different course, he is an enemy to the cause, and indirectly, if not intentionally, a friend to the Rads. We look for no such disaffection, but shall expect to witness on the part of our friends from the sea-side to the mountain top, the most harmonious and successful canvass ever made in this grand old State.

There seems to be a difference of opinion among well informed persons, regarding the election of Judges. Some contend that, by a decision of the Supreme Court concerning Sheriffs, the Judges hold over; while others think that the term of some of the Judges will expire with this year, and their places are to be filled by election. Can you inform us what is the status of this question? If there is to be an election, we beg leave to suggest and earnestly recommend our distinguished fellow citizen, Maj. Jesse J. Yates, in the place of Judge Pool, the present incumbent. A gentleman of legal attainments, known and respected throughout the State for his moderate and Conservative views, he would give general satisfaction to all law-abiding persons, and prove a terror to evil doers. His brilliant canvass for the Convention last summer will long be remembered, and his election was truly gratifying to his friends, notwithstanding the measure failed in the State.

We are sorry to learn that during the storm on Saturday, not soon to be forgotten, we guess in this section, the steam mill of Mr. Elliott, near this place, was blown down, thereby causing much damage to the machinery, and the dependant Mr. E. L. loss, which we deeply regret. We deplore the inconvenience brought upon those who were building, or expected to build soon, as it will be some time before they can obtain timber.

Our friend John N. Vaughan has just gone into his new store and we suppose he would like to call it his Spring quarters, but the Lapland winter would force an old soldier to term them "winter quarters." At any rate, he has a nice store, and will soon be ready to accommodate his patrons with new goods bought for the Spring trade.

We like the appearance of the News greatly, and predict for it much success and usefulness. If you would get some one, who is in the habit of attending many of the courts in the East, to interest themselves for the paper, we think your circulation might be greatly increased. Our interest in the paper is our only apology for this suggestion.

HENTFORD.

General T. T. Crittenden, of counsel for ex-Congressman W. B. Stokes, has entered a suit against him for $400 for professional services in defending him in his late trial for receiving money for prosecuting claims against the government while he was a Representative in Congress, on which charge, it will be remembered, he was convicted and sentenced to pay a fine of $1,500.

The Georgia State Road Investigating Committee has discovered a discrepancy of over $50,000 in the account of certain corporations with the State of Georgia during Bullock's administration.

The dwelling of General Hardee, at Selma, Alabama, was robbed, a few nights ago, of $2,000.

Three Thousand Dollars' worth of Goods Stolen in Philadelphia and Found in New York—A mysterious lady in the case—interesting developments as to who buys stolen goods.

The New York Herald of recent date says:

On the 18th of February, a burglary was committed on the premises of the agent of E. W. S. Jaffray & Co., of 680 Broadway, in Philadelphia, and a quantity of silk stolen, valued at about five thousand dollars. News of the robbery was telegraphed to Superintendent Kelso, of the local police, and he placed the matter in the hands of Captain Irving, of the detective force, who sent Detectives Dunne and Dusenberry to Philadelphia to look into the affair and see how the robbery was done. After a careful examination of the place the detectives came to the conclusion that the robbery was committed by some New York thieves.

This was shown by the extraordinary care the burglar had taken to leave everything as they found it, and to leave as little trace of the robbery behind them as possible. The detectives say they must have been in Philadelphia for some time before they robbed the place, watching the movements of the people engaged in the store, and from what they saw to be the usual routine of the house they made their plans. On the evening of the 18th, Henry Douglas, the watchman at the store, went to his supper, as was his custom, about seven o'clock, and the thieves then putting a watch on the sidewalk to see that their movements were not interfered with, opened the street door and went into the building. They had previously taken an impression of the lock during the absence of the watchman, and had keys made to fit it. They rifled the store and took the merchandise in small quantities to the corner of a neighboring street, where a horse and wagon were in waiting to convey the goods to a place already decided upon. At this place, a number of trunks were prepared to pack the silks in, and the thieves started for New York with their booty, checked as personal baggage, by the ten o'clock train leaving Philadelphia. When the watchman went back to the store at eleven o'clock, he found the door locked all right, but on getting inside he saw that a robbery had been committed.

He gave notice of it to the police authorities, but they could find no traces of thieves. When Detectives Dusenberry and Dunne got upon the ground they soon showed the local police that the robbers had come from New York. Finding what they thought conclusive evidence of the working of the case the detectives returned to this city, and began a hunt among the places known as "fences." Having a description of the goods that were stolen, the detectives knew that the best way to get at the thieves would be to first get hold of the property. The ordinary "fence" kept in collars would not be likely to buy such a quantity of goods at once; so the detectives rummaged the better class of these clandestine houses of traffic.

While the detectives were in the celebrated house on the east side of the town they noticed a lady pass the place who looked exceedingly anxious and nervous about something. With that instinct in such matters which the police possess the two detectives divided their labors. Dunne went after the lady, while Dusenberry remained to see what developments may turn up in the "fence." When Detective Dunne became satisfied the lady had something to do with the work in hand, he returned to Mr. Dusenberry, and both then went to No. 1 Washington place. They requested a private audience of the proprietor, Mr. Frank R. Page. He took them into his private office, in the rear of the jewelry store kept at that number, and there the detectives found a quantity of silks, which have since been estimated as being worth about $3,000. These goods were stored away in lockers, with the understanding that they were arranged along the room, in one of the lockers was a large black leather bag, in which the detectives found a large mink jacket, three velvet cloaks trimmed with black lace, another goods that the detectives were certain had been stolen from some private house. Mr. Page told the detectives a boy had brought the bag to his place and told him a man would shortly call about them. The man did call some time after, and Mr. Page gave a full description of him to the detectives. The silks and satins, Mr. Page said, were left with him on deposit, and he was willing to give the police all the information in his power to lead to the source from which they had come. Page was arrested and taken to Police Headquarters on Saturday night, and the goods found at his place were also transferred to that building. Upon the description given by Page the detectives went to work, and after searching all the well known resorts on the west side of the town, they once more divided their labors, and worked singly for their man. Coming together on Sunday morning without having caught the interesting individual, they strolled up Broadway, and were just passing the Grand Central Hotel when they saw a well dressed individual issuing from that institution. The detectives at once laid hold of him and took him to Police Headquarters, where he gave his name as Walter Warren; but when Captain Irving saw Mr. Warren he recognized him as an old acquaintance and addressed him as William Walker. Superintendent Kelso sent word to the firm of E. S. Jaffray & Co. that Detectives Dunne and Dusenberry had recovered a quantity of silks and satins at No. 1 Washington place, and requested the firm to send some one up to Police Headquarters that would be able to say whether the property found by the officers belonged to them. Messrs. Jaffray & Co. sent the clerk in charge of the silk department to Captain Irving, who showed him the property, and he at once recognized it as a portion of some goods that were sent to the agent of the firm in Philadelphia. The mink jacket and the velvet cloaks the police think were stolen from a private house in the city, and they were anxious to find an owner for them. Two of these cloaks are velvet, and must be worth at least about three hundred and fifty dollars each. The third one is made of silk, trimmed with real lace, and seems to be of the latest Parisian style. Before the detective arrested Mr. Page, they went to Judge Hogan and laid before him the information they had obtained in the matter, and he issued a warrant for the arrest of Page, so that the detectives were properly armed with authority before they took charge of his person.

The burglar who broke into the store in Philadelphia have not yet been arrested, but Detectives Dusenberry and Dunne say they know the man and will be able to arrest them to-day. The capture of Warren is considered by the police to be one of the best arrests made in the department for a long time, for the reason that the officers had nothing more to go upon than an outline of his personal appearance. What part he played in the disposing of the goods is, of course, not yet apparent, but when the detectives get hold of the thieves, it will no doubt be fully established how he was used and by whom. Superintendent Kelso has telegraphed to James R. Cox, the Philadelphia agent of Jaffray & Co., to come on to New York, and he is expected to be in the city, to be present when the two men now under arrest will be brought before Judge Hogan at the Tombs Police Court.
